

Proverbs 20:12

Authorized King James Version (KJV)

The hearing ear, and the seeing eye, the LORD hath made even both of them.

Analysis

God's creative sovereignty extends to human faculties. The 'hearing ear and seeing eye' represent our ability to perceive reality and acquire knowledge. These are not products of evolutionary chance but divine craftsmanship. This verse establishes God's ownership of and authority over all human capacity. Our senses are gifts designed to glorify God by rightly perceiving His creation and revelation. Importantly, spiritual perception requires more than physical organs—God must open deaf ears and blind eyes to receive truth (Isaiah 6:9-10). The same God who made physical ears and eyes must grant spiritual sight and hearing. All knowledge begins with recognizing God as Creator and source of truth.

Historical Context

Ancient pagan worldviews attributed human faculties to various deities or saw them as random products of nature. This proverb asserts Yahweh's exclusive creative agency and purposeful design.
