

Proverbs 20:18

Authorized King James Version (KJV)

Every purpose is established by counsel: and with good advice make war.

Analysis

Success in any enterprise requires counsel—seeking wise advice before acting. 'Established by counsel' indicates that sound plans rest on collective wisdom, not individual impulse. The specific application to warfare emphasizes the need for strategic planning under experienced guidance. War is too consequential to wage impulsively; victory requires careful strategy. This principle extends beyond military matters to all significant decisions. Seeking counsel demonstrates humility, wisdom, and recognition of our limitations. The fool proceeds alone; the wise seek multitudes of advisers (Proverbs 11:14). Ultimately, believers should seek counsel from Scripture, wise believers, and through prayer—submitting all plans to God's revealed will.

Historical Context

Ancient Near Eastern kings employed counselors and military strategists. Israel's defeats often resulted from ignoring prophetic counsel, while victories came through obedience to divine strategy.
