

Proverbs 20:27

Authorized King James Version (KJV)

The spirit of man is the candle of the LORD, searching all the inward parts of the belly.

Analysis

This proverb uses lamp imagery for human consciousness: 'The spirit of man is the candle of the LORD, searching all the inward parts of the belly.' The 'spirit of man' (neshamah adam—breath, life-force given by God) functions as God's 'candle' or 'lamp' (ner), illuminating the inner person. This suggests human conscience, self-awareness, and moral consciousness as God-given capacities enabling moral reflection and self-examination. The lamp 'searches all the inward parts'—reaches the deepest places of human motivation and thought. This anticipates the New Testament teaching that the spirit of man knows his own thoughts (1 Corinthians 2:11) and that God's word discerns the thoughts and intents of the heart (Hebrews 4:12).

Historical Context

Hebrew anthropology distinguished physical life (nephesh) from God-breathed spirit (ruach/neshamah). This verse celebrates the unique human capacity for self-reflection and moral awareness as God's gift distinguishing humans from animals. This consciousness enables recognition of sin, moral deliberation, and accountability before God. It is the basis for conscience and moral responsibility.
