

Proverbs 21:27

Authorized King James Version (KJV)

The sacrifice of the wicked is abomination: how much more,
when he bringeth it with a wicked mind?

Analysis

The wicked person's worship is inherently abominable to God—not merely imperfect but detestable. The second clause intensifies this: 'how much more' when worship is offered 'with a wicked mind'—hypocritically, manipulatively, or presumptuously. God looks at the heart, not external religious performance. The unregenerate person's best works are filthy rags (Isaiah 64:6); his worship is offensive. This destroys any notion of salvation by religious observance apart from regeneration. God desires truth in the inward parts; external compliance without heart transformation is worthless. Only through Christ can sinners offer acceptable worship. This should produce both humility (recognizing our unworthiness) and gratitude (marveling that Christ makes us acceptable).

Historical Context

Israel's prophets repeatedly condemned empty ritualism divorced from justice and heart obedience (Isaiah 1:10-17, Amos 5:21-24). God desires mercy, not sacrifice.

Study Questions

1. Do you approach worship with a pure heart, or merely external compliance?
2. How does understanding worship's acceptability only through Christ affect your approach to God?
