

Proverbs 24:14

Authorized King James Version (KJV)

So shall the knowledge of wisdom be unto thy soul: when thou hast found it, then there shall be a reward, and thy expectation shall not be cut off.

Analysis

'So shall the knowledge of wisdom be unto thy soul'—like honey's sweetness (v. 13), wisdom delights and nourishes the soul. Finding wisdom brings threefold benefit: present delight, certain hope ('there is an end'), and unfailing expectation. The 'end' (Hebrew 'acharith') means future or outcome—wisdom leads to good endings. Your 'expectation shall not be cut off'—hope will be fulfilled, not disappointed. This promises that pursuing wisdom pays off both temporally and eternally. Wisdom's path may be difficult but its destination is sure. By contrast, folly's path may seem pleasant but ends in death. Choose wisdom despite present costs; your hope will not prove vain. God rewards those who diligently seek Him.

Historical Context

Israel's covenant promises linked obedience to blessing and disobedience to curse. While gospel fulfills this through Christ, the principle remains: wisdom leads to life; folly leads to death.

Study Questions

1. Are you pursuing wisdom with confidence that your expectation will not be disappointed?
2. What immediate costs of wisdom are you willing to bear for the certain future reward?
