

Proverbs 24:17

Authorized King James Version (KJV)

Rejoice not when thine enemy falleth, and let not thine heart be glad when he stumbleth:

Analysis

'Rejoice not when thine enemy falleth'—don't celebrate when those who opposed you suffer judgment. This commands remarkable grace: instead of vindictive joy, show restraint even toward enemies. Verse 18 explains why: 'lest the LORD see it, and it displease him, and he turn away his wrath from him.' Gloating over judgment might cause God to show mercy to your enemy (to humble your pride) and judgment to you. This teaches that vengeance belongs to God alone; our response should be sober recognition of justice, not gleeful celebration. Paul echoes this in Romans 12:14-21—bless persecutors, don't seek revenge. Such grace reflects God's character and Christ's teaching to love enemies. Even when God judges wickedness justly, avoid prideful gloating.

Historical Context

Proverbs 25:21-22 commands feeding hungry enemies. Jesus taught loving and praying for persecutors. This radical grace distinguished God's people from pagan cultures that celebrated enemies' destruction.

Study Questions

1. Do you celebrate when those who wronged you suffer, or do you show grace?
2. How can you cultivate godly sorrow over necessary judgment rather than vindictive joy?
