

Proverbs 24:3

Authorized King James Version (KJV)

Through wisdom is an house builded; and by understanding it is established:

Analysis

A house is built 'through wisdom' and 'established' through understanding. The Hebrew 'banah' (built) and 'kun' (established/made firm) describe both construction and stability. 'House' refers to household, family, and estate—the comprehensive ordering of life. Wisdom isn't abstract philosophy but practical skill in living. Reformed theology sees wisdom as fearing God and keeping His commandments. A life built on God's truth stands firm; one built on folly collapses (Matthew 7:24-27). This applies to families, churches, businesses, and personal life.

Historical Context

Building a household in ancient Israel involved not just physical construction but establishing family, managing resources, raising children, and maintaining reputation—all requiring wisdom.

Study Questions

1. Is your life (family, work, finances, relationships) being built on wisdom or folly?
2. What does it mean practically to establish your household through understanding?
3. How does Christ as Wisdom (1 Corinthians 1:24) provide the foundation for building life?
