

Proverbs 25:28

Authorized King James Version (KJV)

He that hath no rule over his own spirit is like a city that is broken down, and without walls.

Analysis

Whoever has no rule over his spirit is like a city broken down without walls. The Hebrew 'ma`tsar ruach' (restraint of spirit/self-control) and 'ir perutsah' (broken city without walls) creates vivid imagery. Ancient cities depended on walls for protection; broken walls meant vulnerability to every enemy. Similarly, lack of self-control leaves person vulnerable to every temptation. Self-discipline protects; impulsiveness exposes. Wisdom requires governing your spirit, not being governed by it.

Historical Context

Ancient warfare made walls essential. Nehemiah's rebuilding Jerusalem's walls was crucial for security (Nehemiah 1-6). A city without walls faced constant threat. Proverbs 16:32 similarly teaches: 'He that is slow to anger is better than the mighty; and he that ruleth his spirit than he that taketh a city.' Paul lists self-control as fruit of Spirit (Galatians 5:23). Peter warns: 'Be sober, be vigilant; because your adversary the devil, as a roaring lion, walketh about, seeking whom he may devour' (1 Peter 5:8).
