

Proverbs 28:13

Authorized King James Version (KJV)

He that covereth his sins shall not prosper: but whoso confesseth and forsaketh them shall have mercy.

Analysis

This proverb addresses confession and repentance: 'He that covereth his sins shall not prosper: but whoso confesseth and forsaketh them shall have mercy.' Covering (kasah) sins—hiding, concealing, refusing to acknowledge them—prevents prosperity (tsalach—success, flourishing). Attempting to hide sin from God is futile (Psalm 139:7-12) and spiritually destructive. Conversely, confessing (yadah—acknowledging, declaring) and forsaking (azab—leaving, abandoning) sins results in mercy (racham—compassion, pity). This establishes the pattern: repentance involves both confession (admitting sin) and forsaking (turning from it). God shows mercy to those who honestly confess and genuinely repent. 1 John 1:9 promises: 'If we confess our sins, he is faithful and just to forgive us our sins.'

Historical Context

Ancient Israel's sacrificial system required confession of sin accompanying sacrifice (Leviticus 5:5, 16:21). Confession acknowledged guilt and the need for atonement. The prophets condemned hypocritical worship that maintained outward ritual while concealing ongoing sin (Isaiah 1:11-17). True repentance involves honest confession and genuine transformation. New Covenant Christians confess to God directly through Christ our mediator.

Study Questions

1. What sins are you attempting to cover or hide rather than honestly confessing to God?
2. How does understanding that confession must accompany forsaking sin guard against cheap grace or superficial repentance?
