

Proverbs 28:5

Authorized King James Version (KJV)

Evil men understand not judgment: but they that seek the LORD understand all things.

Analysis

Evil people 'understand not judgment,' but those seeking the Lord 'understand all things.' The Hebrew 'biyn mishpat' (understand judgment/justice) is impossible for the wicked. Spiritual blindness prevents moral understanding. Meanwhile, those who seek Yahweh gain comprehensive understanding. This doesn't mean omniscience but wisdom to discern right from wrong. Reformed theology affirms that natural man cannot understand spiritual things (1 Corinthians 2:14). Only the Spirit opens eyes to truth. Seeking God is prerequisite to understanding His justice.

Historical Context

Israel's wicked kings couldn't understand justice despite access to God's law (Jeremiah 5:4-5). Understanding required more than information; it required heart transformation through seeking God.
