

Proverbs 29:25

Authorized King James Version (KJV)

The fear of man bringeth a snare: but whoso putteth his trust in the LORD shall be safe.

Analysis

The 'fear of man' (Hebrew 'cheredat'—anxiety, dread) becomes a snare that traps and controls, while trust in the Lord provides true safety (Hebrew 'sagab'—set on high, protected). This proverb diagnoses a root cause of compromise and unfaithfulness: caring more about human opinion than God's approval. The contrast teaches that whoever we fear will control us—either enslaved to man's approval or safe in God's keeping.

Historical Context

Israel's history demonstrated this truth repeatedly: kings who feared surrounding nations made destructive alliances, while those who trusted God alone found protection. The fear of man led to Saul's disobedience (1 Samuel 15:24) and Peter's denial of Christ (Matthew 26:69-75).
