

Proverbs 6:23

Authorized King James Version (KJV)

For the commandment is a lamp; and the law is light; and reproofs of instruction are the way of life:

Analysis

This verse presents God's commandments as life-giving light. 'The commandment is a lamp; and the law is light' uses parallel metaphors—lamp for individual commandments and light for the whole law (torah). In darkness, a lamp guides steps and reveals dangers; similarly, God's commandments illumine the moral path and expose sin. 'Reproofs of instruction are the way of life' completes the thought: corrective discipline guides toward life. This anticipates Psalm 119:105 ('Thy word is a lamp unto my feet') and the New Testament's presentation of Christ as the light of the world (John 8:12). Without God's revealed word, humans stumble in moral darkness; with it, we walk safely toward life.

Historical Context

In ancient Israel, actual lamps provided crucial illumination in dark homes and streets. The metaphor of God's word as light was therefore visceral and practical. The Torah provided moral and civil guidance for community life, making this comparison apt. Early Christians continued this imagery, recognizing Scripture as authoritative guide.
