

Proverbs 7:22

Authorized King James Version (KJV)

He goeth after her straightway, as an ox goeth to the slaughter, or as a fool to the correction of the stocks;

Analysis

He follows her suddenly, as an ox to slaughter, as a fool to stocks for correction. The Hebrew 'pitom' (suddenly/instantly) and 'tevach' (slaughter) describe swift movement toward doom. The ox imagery portrays ignorant domesticated animal approaching its death. The fool in stocks awaits punishment. Both illustrations depict foolish movement toward certain destruction. Seduction succeeds by blinding targets to obvious danger.

Historical Context

Ancient animal sacrifice involved leading cattle to slaughter. Oxen, being domesticated and trusting, would follow handlers peacefully to death. Stocks (leg restraints) were used for punishment and public humiliation. The double imagery emphasizes foolishness - like animal lacking reason, like criminal receiving deserved punishment. Sexual sin reduces humans to subrational beasts and merits criminal punishment.

Study Questions

1. What obvious dangers are you ignoring by 'suddenly' following temptation?
2. How does sin reduce you to subrational animal status, bypassing God-given reason?
3. What 'slaughter' (spiritual death, relational destruction) awaits at the end of paths you're following?
