

Proverbs 8:12

Authorized King James Version (KJV)

I wisdom dwell with prudence, and find out knowledge of witty inventions.

Analysis

I, wisdom, dwell with prudence and find knowledge of witty inventions. The Hebrew 'ormah' (prudence/shrewdness) and 'mezimmah' (discretion/thoughtful plans) describe practical competence. Wisdom isn't merely abstract truth but practical skill. The 'knowledge of witty inventions' indicates creative problem-solving. Godly wisdom produces both moral character and practical effectiveness. Faith and functionality unite in biblical wisdom.

Historical Context

Ancient Near Eastern wisdom literature valued practical competence - agricultural skill, political acumen, craft mastery. Biblical wisdom includes these but grounds them in fearing Yahweh. Bezalel received divine wisdom for tabernacle construction (Exodus 31:3). Solomon's wisdom produced both moral insight and practical solutions (1 Kings 4:29-34). True wisdom integrates spiritual truth with practical skill.
