

Proverbs 8:24

Authorized King James Version (KJV)

When there were no depths, I was brought forth; when there were no fountains abounding with water.

Analysis

Before the depths existed, before fountains heavy with water, wisdom was brought forth. The Hebrew 'chuwl' (brought forth/born) uses birthing imagery, though not suggesting wisdom is created - rather, emphasizing priority and intimacy. Before primordial waters existed, wisdom was there. The progression emphasizes wisdom's absolute priority over all created things. Everything created presupposes wisdom; wisdom presupposes nothing.

Historical Context

Ancient Near Eastern cosmologies often began with primordial waters (Tiamat in Babylonian myth, Nun in Egyptian). Genesis 1:2 references 'the deep' (tehom), but Israel's God orders these waters; He doesn't emerge from them or battle them. Proverbs 8 further emphasizes that even before these primordial waters, wisdom existed with God. Divine wisdom precedes and orders all physical reality.
