

Psalms 101:4

Authorized King James Version (KJV)

A froward heart shall depart from me: I will not know a wicked person.

Analysis

The Hebrew 'froward' (iqqesh) denotes perversion or moral crookedness. David's resolve to distance himself from wickedness reflects the biblical principle of separation from evil (2 Cor 6:17). This verse establishes a standard for godly leadership: the ruler's personal holiness must precede his public administration. The Reformed emphasis on total depravity reminds us that such purity is only possible through God's sanctifying grace, pointing ultimately to Christ who perfectly embodied this standard.

Historical Context

Written by David as a royal psalm of commitment, likely composed upon his coronation or during a covenant renewal ceremony. Ancient Near Eastern kings often made public vows of righteous rule before their subjects.

Study Questions

1. What 'froward' influences or relationships do you need to distance yourself from in obedience to God?
2. How does Christ's perfect righteousness enable believers to pursue holiness in their own spheres of influence?
