

Psalms 104:6

Authorized King James Version (KJV)

Thou coveredst it with the deep as with a garment: the waters stood above the mountains.

Analysis

---

The deep (tehom) covered the earth 'as with a garment,' with waters standing 'above the mountains.' This recalls Genesis 1:2's description of pre-creation chaos, emphasizing God's power over primordial waters. The imagery shows creation beginning in watery formlessness until God's word brought order. This water above mountains will soon recede at God's command (v.7), demonstrating His absolute authority. Christ's calming of the sea (Mark 4:39) echoes this divine mastery over chaotic waters.

Historical Context

Ancient Near Eastern creation myths often featured battles with sea monsters or chaos waters. Israel's account shows God effortlessly commanding waters without struggle, emphasizing His unique sovereignty.
