

Psalm 105:15

Authorized King James Version (KJV)

Saying, Touch not mine anointed, and do my prophets no harm.

Analysis

God warned: 'Touch not mine anointed, and do my prophets no harm.' The patriarchs are called God's anointed (messiah) and prophets, showing their special status. To harm them is to attack God Himself. This principle extends to all God's people—persecuting believers persecutes Christ (Acts 9:4). 'Touch not' doesn't mean avoid all contact but forbids harming. The anointed one ultimately is Christ, whose persecution fulfills this warning. The Reformed understanding of union with Christ means that attacks on believers are attacks on Christ Himself.

Historical Context

The patriarchs weren't literally anointed with oil like later kings, but were chosen and set apart by God for special purposes. Their prophetic role involved receiving and transmitting God's revelation.
