

Psalms 105:41

Authorized King James Version (KJV)

He opened the rock, and the waters gushed out; they ran in the dry places like a river.

Analysis

This verse recounts the water from the rock at Horeb (Exodus 17:1-7) and later at Kadesh (Numbers 20:1-13). 'He opened the rock' uses pathach (פָּתַח), meaning to open or split. 'Waters gushed out' (zarab, זָרַב) means to flow or stream forth abundantly. The waters 'ran in the dry places like a river' shows the abundance and continuity of supply. Paul identifies this rock as a type of Christ: 'they drank from the spiritual rock that followed them, and that rock was Christ' (1 Corinthians 10:4). The struck rock prefigures Christ struck in judgment for our sin, from whom flows the water of life (John 7:37-39).

Historical Context

The rock-water miracle occurred twice: first at Rephidim/Horeb (Exodus 17) and later at Kadesh (Numbers 20). In the second instance, Moses struck the rock in anger rather than speaking to it as commanded, costing him entry into the Promised Land. This severe judgment shows the importance of precisely obeying God's word, especially regarding types of Christ. The rock was a constant reminder of God's provision throughout wilderness wandering.

Study Questions

1. How does water from a struck rock prefigure salvation through Christ's suffering?
2. What does the abundance of water in a desert teach about God's sufficient provision?
3. Why was Moses's alteration of God's command (striking vs. speaking) so severely judged?
