

Psalms 106:34

Authorized King James Version (KJV)

They did not destroy the nations, concerning whom the LORD commanded them:

Analysis

This verse recounts Israel's failure to complete the conquest of Canaan. 'They did not destroy the nations, concerning whom the LORD commanded them' shows direct disobedience. God had commanded total destruction (herem) of Canaanite nations to prevent religious contamination (Deuteronomy 7:1-5; 20:16-18). Israel's failure to obey this difficult command stemmed from compassion, pragmatism, or incomplete trust in God's wisdom. This partial obedience was complete disobedience—it's not obedience if we only do what's comfortable or convenient. The failure to remove pagan nations became Israel's greatest ongoing temptation throughout the judges and monarchy periods.

Historical Context

Judges 1-2 records Israel's incomplete conquest. Tribe after tribe failed to drive out inhabitants, allowing Canaanites to dwell among them. Judges 2:1-3 records the Angel of the LORD rebuking them: 'I said, I will never break my covenant with you...but ye have not obeyed my voice...they shall be as thorns in your sides, and their gods shall be a snare unto you.' This prophecy was fulfilled throughout Judges and Kings as Canaanite religions continually led Israel into idolatry.
