

Psalms 106:38

Authorized King James Version (KJV)

And shed innocent blood, even the blood of their sons and of their daughters, whom they sacrificed unto the idols of Canaan: and the land was polluted with blood.

Analysis

This verse expands on child sacrifice's horror. 'They shed innocent blood' emphasizes the victims' innocence. 'Even the blood of their sons and of their daughters' personalizes the tragedy—these were their own children. 'Whom they sacrificed unto the idols of Canaan' identifies the false gods as Canaanite deities like Molech, Baal, and Asherah. 'And the land was polluted with blood' uses chaneph (חָנָף), meaning profaned, defiled, or polluted. Bloodshed pollutes land, crying out for justice (Genesis 4:10; Numbers 35:33-34). Israel's land became defiled through murder, especially of innocent children, requiring purging through judgment (exile). Innocent blood demands justice.

Historical Context

Jeremiah denounced child sacrifice, declaring God never commanded it nor did it enter His mind (Jeremiah 7:31; 19:5). The prophets identified it as a primary reason for exile. God's patience endured this abomination for generations before bringing judgment. The pollution of the land parallels how Adam's sin corrupted creation (Genesis 3:17-18; Romans 8:20-22). Only exile and restoration could purge the land's defilement, pointing to Christ's blood that ultimately cleanses from all sin.
