

Psalm 106:4

Authorized King James Version (KJV)

Remember me, O LORD, with the favour that thou bearest unto thy people: O visit me with thy salvation;

Analysis

This is a personal prayer within the corporate psalm. 'Remember me' uses zakar (רִזְקָנָה), asking God to act favorably. 'With the favour that thou bearest unto thy people' requests inclusion in covenant blessings. 'Visit me' (paqad, תִּפְאַד) means to attend to, care for, or intervene on behalf of. The psalmist doesn't ask for unique blessings but to share in what God gives His people. This reflects covenant theology: individual blessing comes through membership in God's people. The prayer acknowledges that God's favor to His corporate body is sufficient—the psalmist wants nothing more than to participate in it.

Historical Context

This prayer likely reflects an individual Israelite's desire to share in national restoration, perhaps during exile or return from Babylon. Rather than seeking personal advancement apart from the community, the prayer binds individual hope to corporate covenant. This communal orientation was central to Israelite piety, contrasting with modern Western individualism.
