

Psalms 107:20

Authorized King James Version (KJV)

He sent his word, and healed them, and delivered them from their destructions.

Analysis

This verse describes God's healing method. 'He sent his word, and healed them' emphasizes the power of God's word. 'Sent' (shalach, שָׁלַח) means to dispatch or send forth. God's word goes forth with power to accomplish His purposes (Isaiah 55:10-11). 'And delivered them from their destructions' uses malat (מָלַת), meaning to escape or slip away from—they're rescued from destruction. Jesus healed with His word ('Be clean,' 'Rise and walk'), demonstrating divine authority. The Word (Logos) made flesh (John 1:14) brings ultimate healing from sin's destruction. God's word creates, judges, saves, and heals.

Historical Context

God's word healed throughout Scripture: speaking created the cosmos (Genesis 1); God's word through prophets brought healing (2 Kings 5:10-14 - Elisha's word to Naaman). Jesus' healings by word demonstrated His deity—only God's word has inherent creative power. The centurion recognized this: 'Speak the word only, and my servant shall be healed' (Matthew 8:8). In the new covenant, the gospel word brings spiritual healing (1 Peter 2:24).
