

Psalms 107:4

Authorized King James Version (KJV)

They wandered in the wilderness in a solitary way; they found no city to dwell in.

Analysis

This verse begins the first of four rescue scenarios. 'They wandered in the wilderness in a solitary way' describes lostness and desolation. 'Wilderness' (midbar, מִדְבָּר) is uninhabited wasteland. 'Solitary way' (derek yeshimon, דֶּרֶךְ יְשִׁימוֹן) means a desolate, pathless place—emphasizing both physical and existential lostness. 'They found no city to dwell in' means no habitation, no security, no home. This describes the literal experience of exiles journeying home and Israel's wilderness wandering, but also represents spiritual lostness—humanity wandering without God, seeking home but finding none. Augustine's 'our hearts are restless until they find rest in Thee' echoes this condition.

Historical Context

This scenario may describe exiles traveling through dangerous, barren regions returning from Babylon. It also echoes Israel's 40-year wilderness wandering (Psalm 105-106). The image of wandering seeking a city appears in Hebrews 11:10, 13-16, where the patriarchs sought 'a city which hath foundations, whose builder and maker is God.' The 'city to dwell in' ultimately is the New Jerusalem (Revelation 21-22), the eternal home for God's redeemed people.
