

Psalms 115:11

Authorized King James Version (KJV)

Ye that fear the LORD, trust in the LORD: he is their help and their shield.

Analysis

Ye that fear the LORD, trust in the LORD (יִרְאֵי יְהוָה בְּטַחוּ בִיהוָה)—The psalmist moves from calling on the house of Aaron to address all God-fearers. The Hebrew yir'ei YHWH (those who fear the LORD) became a technical term for Gentile converts and sympathizers in Second Temple Judaism (Acts 10:2, 13:16). The imperative bichu (trust!) intensifies the call: those who reverence God must actively depend on Him.

He is their help and their shield (עֲזָרָם וּמִגֶּנֶם הוּא)—The pronoun placement is emphatic: "He Himself is their help and shield." This echoes Abraham's promise, "I am your shield" (Genesis 15:1). The combination of ezer (help, active aid) and magen (shield, defensive protection) encompasses both God's offensive intervention and defensive covering—a complete security unavailable from lifeless idols (verses 4-8).

Historical Context

Psalms 115 likely dates to the post-exilic period when Israel faced mockery: "Where is their God?" (v. 2). The threefold call to trust (Israel, Aaron, God-fearers) reflects the worshiping community structure after the return from Babylon. This verse specifically addresses the God-fearers, likely including Gentile converts who had aligned themselves with Israel's God.
