

Psalms 116:16

Authorized King James Version (KJV)

O LORD, truly I am thy servant; I am thy servant, and the son of thine handmaid: thou hast loosed my bonds.

Analysis

O LORD, truly I am thy servant; I am thy servant, and the son of thine handmaid: thou hast loosed my bonds. This confession of servanthood acknowledges covenant relationship and divine deliverance. The double declaration truly I am thy servant; I am thy servant (ani avdekha ani avdekha, אֲנִי־עֲבָדְךָ אֲנִי־עֲבָדְךָ) emphasizes wholehearted commitment through repetition. Eved (עֶבֶד) means servant, slave, one bound in service.

And the son of thine handmaid (ben-amatekha, בֶּן־אִמְתְּךָ) adds generational dimension. Born into a believing household, the psalmist inherited covenant relationship. This echoes the household servant concept—those born in the master's house possessed permanent status (Genesis 15:3, 17:12-13). It suggests both heritage (raised in faith) and permanence (lifelong commitment).

Thou hast loosed my bonds (pittachta lemoserai, פָּתַחְתָּ לְמוֹסְרֵי). Patach (פָּתַח) means to open, loose, free. Moserot (מוֹסְרוֹת) means bonds, fetters, restraints. God broke the death-cords that bound the psalmist (v. 3). Liberation from death produces voluntary servanthood to God—the paradox of Christian freedom: freed from sin's slavery to become slaves of righteousness (Romans 6:17-18).

Historical Context

In ancient Israel, permanent servanthood was chosen by servants who loved their masters (Exodus 21:5-6; Deuteronomy 15:16-17). A servant could go free after six years but might choose permanent service, declaring, 'I love my master...I will not go out free.' This voluntary, love-motivated servanthood pictures covenant relationship. God delivers believers from sin and death, and grateful believers voluntarily commit to permanent service. Paul calls himself 'servant of Jesus Christ' (Romans 1:1), Mary declares herself 'the handmaid of the Lord' (Luke 1:38).

1. How does being 'loosed from bonds' paradoxically lead to voluntary servanthood rather than autonomous freedom?
2. What does it mean to be 'son of thine handmaid'—inheriting faith from previous generations?
3. In what practical ways can you demonstrate that you are God's servant by choice, not coercion?
