

Psalms 119:107

Authorized King James Version (KJV)

I am afflicted very much: quicken me, O LORD, according unto thy word.

Analysis

I am afflicted very much (נַעֲנִיתִי עַד־מָאֹד, na'aneiti ad-me'od)—the verb anah means to be bowed down, humbled, or oppressed. Despite this crushing affliction, the psalmist's plea is not for relief but for spiritual vitality: quicken me, O LORD, according unto thy word (חַיֵּנִי יְהוָה כְּדִבְרְךָ, chayyeni YHWH kidvarekha). The verb chayah means to make alive, revive, preserve life—occurring ten times in Psalm 119.

This petition reveals profound theology: affliction drives us to seek life-giving power from God's word, not merely escape from suffering. The psalmist prays for resurrection life in the midst of death-like circumstances. Paul echoes this in 2 Corinthians 4:8-10, where affliction produces spiritual life. True revival comes not from changed circumstances but from God's quickening according to His promises.

Historical Context

Affliction was common in Israel's history—persecution, exile, opposition. The psalmist's focus on being 'quickenened' rather than merely rescued reflects the theology of the exile, where physical deliverance seemed impossible but spiritual vitality remained accessible through God's word.
