

Psalm 119:132

Authorized King James Version (KJV)

Look thou upon me, and be merciful unto me, as thou usest to do unto those that love thy name.

Analysis

Look thou upon me, and be merciful unto me (פָּנָה-אֲלִי וְחִנָּנָי) — Panah (turn, look) implies God's deliberate attention; chanan (be gracious, show favor) appears 13 times in Psalm 119. The request is for God's face to turn toward the petitioner with merciful regard, reversing divine hiddenness.

As thou usest to do unto those that love thy name (כְּמִשְׁפָּט לְאַקְבֵּי שְׁמֶךָ) — mishpat l'ohavei shemekha — Mishpat here means 'custom, ordinance, established practice.' The psalmist appeals to God's consistent pattern of showing mercy to those who love His name. Divine character creates covenant expectation.

Historical Context

The priestly blessing in Numbers 6:24-26 similarly prays, 'The LORD make His face shine upon you and be gracious to you.' God's 'face' represents His presence, favor, and relational engagement. To seek God's face was central to Hebrew piety (2 Chr 7:14).

Study Questions

1. What does it mean to ask God to 'look upon' you—are you comfortable under His gaze?
2. How does God's established pattern of mercy toward those who love His name give you confidence in prayer?
3. Do you love God's 'name' (His revealed character and reputation) or merely desire His blessings?
