

Psalms 119:14

Authorized King James Version (KJV)

I have rejoiced in the way of thy testimonies, as much as in all riches.

Analysis

---

I have rejoiced in the way of thy testimonies, as much as in all riches. Here the psalmist expresses extraordinary delight in Scripture. Rejoiced (sasti, שָׂשִׁיתִי) conveys exultation and joy, not mere intellectual appreciation. The object is the way of thy testimonies (derek edotekha, דֶּרֶךְ עֲדוֹתֶיךָ)—not just the content of God's testimonies but the path of living according to them. Testimonies (edot, עֲדוֹת) are God's witnesses to His character and covenant faithfulness.

The comparison to all riches (kol-hon, כָּל-הוֹן) is striking. The psalmist values God's Word more than unlimited material wealth—the very treasures most people pursue with passion. This echoes verse 72's declaration that God's law is better than thousands of gold and silver pieces. Jesus would later teach that the kingdom of heaven is like a treasure worth selling everything to obtain (Matthew 13:44), and Paul counted all things as loss compared to knowing Christ (Philippians 3:8).

Historical Context

In the ancient world, wealth meant security, status, and power. Riches could purchase protection, influence, and comfort. For the psalmist to value God's testimonies equally suggests a radical reorientation of values. This counter-cultural perspective would have challenged Israel's frequent temptation to pursue material prosperity through political alliances and economic opportunism rather than covenant faithfulness.

Study Questions

1. Do you genuinely rejoice in Scripture with the same intensity that people pursue wealth and success?
2. What practical changes would occur in your life if you truly valued God's Word as much as financial security?
3. How can you cultivate deeper joy in obeying God's testimonies rather than viewing them as restrictive obligations?
