

Psalms 119:19

Authorized King James Version (KJV)

I am a stranger in the earth: hide not thy commandments from me.

Analysis

I am a stranger in the earth: hide not thy commandments from me. The psalmist confesses his pilgrim status. Stranger (ger, גֵּר) denotes a sojourner, alien, or temporary resident—one who doesn't belong. Abraham used this term describing himself in Canaan (Genesis 23:4), and Israel's covenant identity included remembering they were strangers in Egypt (Exodus 22:21). Peter would later remind believers, 'ye are strangers and pilgrims' (1 Peter 2:11), and Hebrews 11:13 describes the faithful as 'strangers and pilgrims on the earth.'

This alien status creates urgent need: hide not thy commandments from me (al-taster mimmenni mitzvotekha, אַל-תַּסֵּתֶר מִמֶּנִּי מִצְוֹתֶיךָ). A stranger in foreign land desperately needs guidance—unfamiliar with local customs, vulnerable to danger, dependent on instruction. God's commandments (mitzvot, מִצְוֹת) provide the moral compass and divine wisdom essential for navigating this world as exiles awaiting our true home.

Historical Context

Israel's history was marked by displacement—from Abraham's migration to Egyptian slavery to Babylonian exile. The language of sojourning pervaded Jewish consciousness. Even when dwelling in the Promised Land, Israel was reminded that 'the land is Mine; for ye are strangers and sojourners with Me' (Leviticus 25:23). This verse reflects the wisdom that earthly life is temporary pilgrimage, not permanent settlement.
