

Psalms 119:22

Authorized King James Version (KJV)

Remove from me reproach and contempt; for I have kept thy testimonies.

Analysis

Remove from me reproach and contempt; for I have kept thy testimonies.

The psalmist prays for vindication from social shame. Remove (gal, גַּל) means to roll away, like rolling a stone from a well. Reproach (cherpah, חֶרְפָּה) is disgrace or scorn, while contempt (buz, בּוֹז) is disdain or derision. The psalmist suffers social rejection and public mockery, likely because of his commitment to God's Word in a hostile environment.

The for clause provides the basis for his appeal: I have kept thy testimonies (edotekha natsarti, עֲדוֹתֶיךָ נָצַרְתִּי). Natsar (נָצַר) means to guard, watch over, preserve carefully. The psalmist's suffering results from obedience, not sin. This anticipates Jesus' teaching that faithful disciples will face reproach (Matthew 5:11) and Paul's reminder that 'all who will live godly in Christ Jesus shall suffer persecution' (2 Timothy 3:12). Yet Christ bore ultimate reproach (Hebrews 13:13), and God promises to vindicate His faithful servants.

Historical Context

Reproach and contempt were particularly painful in honor-shame cultures where social standing was paramount. The righteous frequently faced mockery for their devotion (Nehemiah 2:19, Jeremiah 20:7-8). The psalmist's appeal for vindication reflects confidence in God's justice, trusting that temporary social shame will give way to eternal honor for those who remain faithful despite opposition.
