

Psalms 119:25

Authorized King James Version (KJV)

My soul cleaveth unto the dust: quicken thou me according to thy word.

Analysis

My soul cleaveth unto the dust (דָּבַקְהוּ לְעֹפָר וּנְפֹשִׁי)—The verb davaq (cling, cleave) describes desperate adhesion, the same word used of covenant marriage (Genesis 2:24). The psalmist feels death's gravitational pull toward afar (dust), recalling God's curse on sin (Genesis 3:19). Quicken me according to thy word (חַיֵּי כִדְבָרְךָ)—Only God's dabar (word) has resurrection power. The plea for chayah (to make alive, revive) anticipates Christ who conquered death and declared "I am the resurrection and the life" (John 11:25).

This Daleth (ד) stanza opens with spiritual depression so profound it feels like dying. Yet even in this dark valley, the psalmist clings to Scripture as the sole source of revival. The tension between clinging to dust and crying for life captures the believer's struggle against indwelling sin.

Historical Context

Written during Israel's monarchy, likely by David or another Levitical poet. Ancient Near Eastern laments often used dust imagery for death, mourning, and humiliation. The psalmist writes from either physical exile, spiritual depression, or persecution—all common experiences for God's people under the old covenant.

Study Questions

1. When your soul 'cleaves to the dust' of depression or sin, how does God's Word specifically revive you?
2. What does it mean that the same verb (davaq) describes both clinging to dust and cleaving to God—where is your soul truly adhering?
3. How does this verse's plea for quickening point forward to the resurrection life believers have in Christ?
