

Psalms 119:49

Authorized King James Version (KJV)

Remember the word unto thy servant, upon which thou hast caused me to hope.

Analysis

Remember the word unto thy servant, upon which thou hast caused me to hope. This verse (ז Zayin section) is a covenant appeal—the psalmist calls on God to fulfill His promise. Remember (זָכַר, zakar) doesn't imply God forgot, but rather 'act upon' His word. The phrase thy servant (עַבְדְּךָ, avdekha) invokes covenant relationship, not servility but filial trust.

The phrase upon which thou hast caused me to hope reveals divine initiative—God's word itself generates hope (תִּקְוָה, tiqvah). This anticipates Paul's teaching that faith comes by hearing God's word (Romans 10:17). The believer doesn't conjure hope but receives it as gift, grounded in God's reliable promises.

Historical Context

Psalms 119 is an elaborate acrostic poem with 22 eight-verse sections, each corresponding to a letter of the Hebrew alphabet. The Zayin section (vv. 49-56) emphasizes God's faithfulness to His promises during affliction. Composed likely during or after exile, when Israel clung to covenant promises despite seeming abandonment, this psalm reflects deep trust in God's written revelation.
