

Psalms 119:72

Authorized King James Version (KJV)

The law of thy mouth is better unto me than thousands of gold and silver.

Analysis

The law of thy mouth is better unto me than thousands of gold and silver (טוב לי תורת־פִּיךָ מֵאַלְפֵי זָהָב וֶכֶסֶף). This Yodh (י) stanza climaxes with radical economic theology: God's torah (instruction) exceeds infinite material wealth. The Hebrew me'alfei (thousands upon thousands) emphasizes not mere preference but infinite disproportion—no quantity of precious metals approaches Scripture's value.

Paul echoes this in Philippians 3:8, counting all things as dung compared to knowing Christ. The psalmist's li (to me) makes this intensely personal—not theoretical but experiential valuation. Jesus taught the same calculus in the parable of the pearl of great price (Matthew 13:45-46): selling all to possess the one thing of surpassing worth.

Historical Context

Psalm 119 is the longest chapter in Scripture, an elaborate acrostic poem where each 8-verse stanza begins with successive Hebrew letters. The Yodh section (vv. 73-80) emphasizes divine craftsmanship and covenant faithfulness. Written likely during or after the exile, when Israel had lost material prosperity but retained Scripture.
