

Psalms 119:90

Authorized King James Version (KJV)

Thy faithfulness is unto all generations: thou hast established the earth, and it abideth.

Analysis

Thy faithfulness is unto all generations אֶמְנַתְּךָ לְדָרְךָ (emunatekha ledor vador)—God's emunah (faithfulness, steadfastness) transcends time, binding every generation to His covenant promises. The parallelism connects divine faithfulness to creation's stability: thou hast established the earth, and it abideth כְּבָרְךָ אֶתְּךָ וְתַּבְּרִךְ (konanta eretz vata'amod). The verb kun (established) denotes firm foundation—the same word used of God establishing His throne (Psalm 93:2).

This is verse 90 of the Lamedh (ל) section, where each verse begins with the 12th letter of the Hebrew alphabet. The psalmist anchors hope in God's unchanging character: as creation obeys its Maker's ordinances (v. 91), so Scripture remains trustworthy across millennia. This faithfulness reached ultimate expression in Christ, whom Hebrews 13:8 declares "the same yesterday, today, and forever."

Historical Context

Psalm 119, the longest chapter in Scripture (176 verses), is an elaborate acrostic poem with 22 eight-verse stanzas—one for each Hebrew letter. Likely composed during or after the Exile, it reflects Israel's dependence on Torah when temple and land were lost. The Lamedh section (vv. 89-96) meditates on Scripture's eternal nature.
