

Psalms 121:3

Authorized King James Version (KJV)

He will not suffer thy foot to be moved: he that keepeth thee will not slumber.

Analysis

---

The reassurance: Al yitten lamot raglekha (He will not permit your foot to slip). Natan (give/permit) with mot (slip/totter/waver) promises stability. Regel (foot) represents one's path, walk, conduct. Al yanum shomrekha (He will not slumber, your keeper). Num (slumber/be drowsy); shomer (keeper/guard/watcher). The answer to verse 1-2: God as keeper doesn't drowse or sleep—He maintains constant vigilance. Human guardians grow weary, but divine guardian never sleeps. This echoes 1 Kings 18:27 where Elijah mocked Baal (perhaps sleeping?), contrasting YHWH's constant wakefulness.

Historical Context

---

Ancient Near Eastern deities supposedly slept, requiring morning wake-up rituals. Babylonian liturgy included morning songs to awaken gods. The Baal cycle depicts Baal sleeping in his palace. Psalm 44:23 sarcastically asks God, "Awake, why sleepest thou?" knowing He doesn't actually sleep but seemingly remains inactive. Psalm 121 positively affirms God's sleepless watchfulness. Guards on city walls took shifts because humans need sleep. God needs no relief—He never nods off, never loses alertness. Believers can rest securely knowing God's ceaseless protection.
