

Psalm 121:5

Authorized King James Version (KJV)

The LORD is thy keeper: the LORD is thy shade upon thy right hand.

Analysis

YHWH shomrekha, YHWH tzilkha al yad yeminekha (The LORD is your keeper, the LORD is your shade at your right hand). Shomer (keeper) and tzel (shade/shadow) both indicate protection. Yad yemin (right hand) represents position of honor, strength, protection—guards stood at right hand to shield with their own bodies. In hot Middle Eastern climate, shade means relief, comfort, survival. God as shade protects from scorching dangers. The repetition of YHWH (covenant name) twice emphasizes personal relationship and covenantal commitment.

Historical Context

Desert and wilderness travel in ancient Israel involved real danger from sun exposure—heatstroke, dehydration, sunburn. Psalm 91:1 similarly speaks of dwelling "in the shadow of the Almighty." Isaiah 25:4 calls God "a shadow from the heat." Jonah's anger at losing his shade-plant (Jonah 4:5-8) shows shade's importance. In battles, shield-bearers protected warriors' right sides (vulnerable to incoming weapons). God functions as both shade (from environmental dangers) and right-hand protector (from hostile attacks). Jesus at God's right hand (Hebrews 1:3) now intercedes for believers (Romans 8:34).
