

Psalms 129:4

Authorized King James Version (KJV)

The LORD is righteous: he hath cut asunder the cords of the wicked.

Analysis

Divine intervention is confessed: 'The LORD is righteous: he hath cut asunder the cords of the wicked.' The word 'righteous' (Hebrew 'tsaddiq') describes God's justice, faithfulness to covenant, and moral perfection. This attribute explains why God intervened - His righteousness required defending His people and judging oppressors. The phrase 'cut asunder the cords' pictures God severing the ropes or chains that bound Israel. 'Cords of the wicked' represent bondage, oppression, and control enemies exercised. The imagery shifts from plowing (v. 3) to binding and cutting - enemies not only wounded but enslaved; God not only healed but liberated. The verb 'cut asunder' (Hebrew 'qatsats') means to sever completely, leaving no partial attachment. God's deliverance is thorough, not incomplete. This verse provides the theological center of the psalm - God's righteous character guarantees His intervention against oppressors.

Historical Context

Throughout Israel's history, God intervened to break oppressive bonds - Egyptian slavery ended, Babylonian exile concluded, enemy plots failed. Each deliverance demonstrated God's righteousness and covenant faithfulness. The pattern of bondage-to-freedom formed Israel's core narrative (Exodus) and repeated throughout history.
