

Psalm 135:21

Authorized King James Version (KJV)

Blessed be the LORD out of Zion, which dwelleth at Jerusalem. Praise ye the LORD.

Analysis

The psalm reaches its climax: 'Blessed be the LORD out of Zion, which dwelleth at Jerusalem. Praise ye the LORD.' The grammar shifts from imperative ('bless the LORD') to declarative ('blessed be the LORD'), moving from command to accomplished fact. Praise rises 'out of Zion,' the temple mount where God chose to place His name. The phrase 'which dwelleth at Jerusalem' (shochen Yerushalayim) emphasizes divine presence - the God of all creation condescends to dwell among His people. This localized presence does not limit God but demonstrates His gracious accessibility. The final 'Hallelujah' (Praise ye the LORD) forms an inclusio with verse 1, framing the entire psalm in praise. For Christians, this dwelling finds ultimate expression in Christ, 'the Word made flesh' who 'dwelt among us' (John 1:14), and extends to the church as God's temple (1 Corinthians 3:16).

Historical Context

Zion originally referred to the Jebusite fortress David captured, then extended to the temple mount and eventually to Jerusalem as a whole. The concept of God 'dwelling' in Jerusalem created both privilege and responsibility for Israel. This theology of divine presence shaped Jewish worship and identity through exile and beyond.
