

Psalm 136:4

Authorized King James Version (KJV)

To him who alone doeth great wonders: for his mercy endureth for ever.

Analysis

---

"To him who alone doeth great wonders: for his mercy endureth for ever." The phrase l'oseh nifla'ot gedolot levado (to the one doing great wonders alone) emphasizes divine uniqueness and exclusivity. Niflaot (wonders/marvels) describes extraordinary acts beyond natural causation. Gedolot (great) indicates magnitude. Levado (alone/by Himself) stresses that YHWH alone performs such wonders—no human help, no divine collaborators, no natural explanation. This recalls Exodus miracles (plagues, Red Sea), wilderness provision (manna, water from rock), conquest of Canaan (Jordan crossing, Jericho's fall), and ongoing divine interventions. The refrain again links wonder-working power with enduring mercy—God's miracles serve His covenant faithfulness, not arbitrary displays of power.

Historical Context

Israel's history consisted of divine wonders: creation, flood, calling Abraham, Isaac's birth to aged parents, exodus plagues, Red Sea parting, Sinai theophany, wilderness provision, Jordan crossing, sun standing still (Joshua 10), Gideon's fleece and victory, David's triumphs, Elijah's miracles, return from exile. These wonders authenticated YHWH as true God against false deities who performed no such acts (1 Kings 18:20-40). The New Testament records Christ's miracles as signs authenticating His messiahship (John 20:30-31) and apostolic miracles confirming gospel proclamation (Acts 2:22, Hebrews 2:3-4). Church history continues to testify to God's wonderful works in conversion, providence, and occasional miraculous interventions.
