

Psalms 145:4

Authorized King James Version (KJV)

One generation shall praise thy works to another, and shall declare thy mighty acts.

Analysis

---

One generation shall praise thy works to another, and shall declare thy mighty acts. The transmission of faith across generations—dor l'dor (דֹר לְדֹר) "generation to generation"—is central to covenant faithfulness. The verb yeshabēchu (יִשְׁבְּחוּ) "shall praise" indicates ongoing testimony, not passive tradition. God's ma'aseka (מַעֲשֵׂיָךְ) "works" and gēburoteka (גְּבוּרֹתֶיךָ) "mighty acts" encompass both creation and redemptive history.

Shall declare (yaggidu, יִגִּידוּ) means to tell, recount, make known—active proclamation, not mere preservation. Each generation has responsibility to tell the next of God's faithfulness, paralleling Deuteronomy 6:6-7 and anticipating the Great Commission's call to make disciples of all nations.

Historical Context

The intergenerational transmission of faith was foundational to Israelite identity (Exodus 12:26-27, Psalm 78:4-6). Fathers were commanded to teach children God's mighty acts in Egypt, the wilderness wanderings, and entrance into Canaan. This educational mandate preserved covenant knowledge through centuries of upheaval.
