

Psalms 145:7

Authorized King James Version (KJV)

They shall abundantly utter the memory of thy great goodness, and shall sing of thy righteousness.

Analysis

They shall abundantly utter the memory of thy great goodness, and shall sing of thy righteousness. The verb yabbiyu (יְבִיעוּ) "shall abundantly utter" literally means to gush forth, bubble up, pour out—spontaneous overflow, not restrained speech. God's rav tuvcha (רַב־טוֹבָה) "abundant goodness" provokes abundant testimony. The word zeker (זֵכֶר) "memory/memorial" suggests both remembrance and public proclamation of God's goodness.

Shall sing of thy righteousness (tsidqateka yĕrannenu, יְרַנְּנוּ צִדְקָתְךָ)—ranan (רָנַן) means to shout for joy, cry out in triumph. God's tsedeq (צֶדֶק) "righteousness" includes both His just character and His saving acts. The parallelism shows that God's goodness and righteousness are inseparable: His justice flows from His goodness, and His mercy never compromises His righteousness.

Historical Context

The remembrance (zeker) of God's goodness was central to Israelite worship, formalized in festivals like Passover (remembering the Exodus) and Tabernacles (remembering wilderness provision). These celebrations ensured that each generation experienced God's past faithfulness as present reality.
