

Psalms 16:3

Authorized King James Version (KJV)

But to the saints that are in the earth, and to the excellent, in whom is all my delight.

Analysis

---

David delights in 'the saints in the land' and 'the excellent ones.' The Hebrew 'qadosh' (saints/holy ones) and 'addir' (excellent/noble) describe those set apart for God. This anticipates the communion of saints—believers find fellowship and delight in God's people. Reformed theology emphasizes the vital importance of the church as Christ's body where believers edify one another (Hebrews 10:24-25).

Historical Context

Written when David found support among faithful Israelites during persecution, demonstrating the practical importance of godly community in trials.
