

Psalm 17:3

Authorized King James Version (KJV)

Thou hast proved mine heart; thou hast visited me in the night; thou hast tried me, and shalt find nothing; I am purposed that my mouth shall not transgress.

Analysis

David submits to God's testing: 'You have tried my heart.' The Hebrew 'bachan' (tried/tested) suggests refining metal. God's night visitation and testing by fire found nothing—David resolved that his mouth would not transgress. This parallels Job's confidence in divine testing (Job 23:10) and anticipates Peter's teaching that trials prove faith's genuineness (1 Peter 1:7). Reformed theology sees trials as God's sanctifying means.

Historical Context

Reflects ancient metallurgy where fire purified precious metals by burning away impurities—a common biblical metaphor for divine testing and sanctification.
