

Psalms 19:4

Authorized King James Version (KJV)

Their line is gone out through all the earth, and their words to the end of the world. In them hath he set a tabernacle for the sun,

Analysis

---

Creation's 'voice' goes out to all earth, their words to the world's end. Paul applies this verse to gospel preaching in Romans 10:18, showing how natural revelation anticipates special revelation. The sun's tent in the heavens introduces solar imagery for God's revelation. The Hebrew 'qav' (measuring line/voice) suggests both extent and precision. Creation's testimony is both universal and exact.

Historical Context

Ancient cosmology viewed the sun as having a dwelling place, here used poetically to describe its regular course across the sky as ordained by God.

Study Questions

1. How does creation's universal testimony point you to seek fuller revelation in Christ?
2. In what ways does the gospel's spread fulfill creation's worldwide witness?
