

Psalms 22:25

Authorized King James Version (KJV)

My praise shall be of thee in the great congregation: I will pay my vows before them that fear him.

Analysis

Praise 'in the great congregation' emphasizes public, corporate worship. Paying 'vows before them that fear him' refers to fulfilling promises made during distress—a common practice in lament psalms. From a Reformed perspective, this models covenant faithfulness: God keeps His promises, and His people respond by keeping theirs. Public worship becomes the forum for testifying to God's faithfulness and fulfilling sacred obligations made in private prayer.

Historical Context

Israelites would vow offerings or service if God delivered them from danger. After deliverance, they would publicly fulfill these vows in the temple, combining thanksgiving sacrifice with testimony. This practice created accountability and corporate encouragement.
