

Psalms 24:7

Authorized King James Version (KJV)

Lift up your heads, O ye gates; and be ye lift up, ye everlasting doors; and the King of glory shall come in.

Analysis

The command to gates—'Lift up your heads, O ye gates'—personifies Jerusalem's entryway, calling them to prepare for the King's arrival. The question 'Who is this King of glory?' creates dramatic anticipation. Reformed theology sees Christ's triumphal entry (Palm Sunday) and His ascension fulfilling this imagery. When Christ enters, all barriers must yield. The repetition in verse 9 emphasizes the importance and certainty of the King's victorious entrance.

Historical Context

This may have been sung when the Ark entered Jerusalem (2 Sam. 6) or during festival processions. The antiphonal question-answer format created liturgical drama, teaching congregants about God's character through participatory worship.
