

Psalms 27:11

Authorized King James Version (KJV)

Teach me thy way, O LORD, and lead me in a plain path, because of mine enemies.

Analysis

The prayer 'Teach me thy way, O LORD, and lead me in a plain path, because of mine enemies' combines request for instruction and guidance. 'Thy way' (derek) means the path of covenant obedience. 'Plain path' (meshor orach) means a level, straight road—free from obstacles. Enemies create need for divine guidance to avoid their traps. Reformed theology emphasizes that sanctification requires both revelation (teaching God's way) and providence (leading on safe paths). God's Word and Spirit guide believers through enemy territory.

Historical Context

Israel's wilderness journey required divine guidance—cloud and fire led them through hostile territory. Similarly, believers navigate enemy opposition (Satan, world, flesh) requiring God's instruction and providential leading.
