

Psalms 31:15

Authorized King James Version (KJV)

My times are in thy hand: deliver me from the hand of mine enemies, and from them that persecute me.

Analysis

My times are in thy hand: deliver me from the hand of mine enemies, and from them that persecute me. Divine sovereignty over life's chronology while petitioning for deliverance—demonstrating that trusting God's control doesn't eliminate prayer but grounds it. Core Reformed convictions about providence and prayer.

My times are in thy hand declares God's sovereignty over David's life duration, circumstances, seasons. Hebrew 'eth means times, seasons, appointed moments. Plural suggests all of David's times—past, present, future; danger and safety; suffering and joy. All held in God's hand (yad—power, authority, control). This is not deistic observation but intimate, purposeful governance.

Deliver me from the hand of mine enemies juxtaposes God's hand with enemies' hands. Petition assumes God's sovereign hand controls whether enemies' hands succeed. David doesn't pray because circumstances are out of control but precisely because they're under God's control. He appeals to Sovereign to exercise sovereignty on David's behalf.

Reformed theology insists God's sovereignty doesn't eliminate secondary causes (enemies genuinely pursue) but governs them (God determines outcome). Prayer is means God appointed for His people to participate in His providential governance—not changing His mind but conforming to decreed purposes.

Historical Context

My times are in thy hand resonates with Israel's covenantal understanding. God determined times and seasons of Israel's history—400 years in Egypt, 40 years in wilderness, timing of judges and kings. God's control over times is fundamental to biblical history and prophecy.

Reformers emphasized this doctrine against Renaissance humanism's growing emphasis on human autonomy. Calvin wrote extensively on providence, arguing nothing occurs by chance—all events fall under God's wise governance. This doesn't make God author of sin but affirms He directs even evil toward good ends.

Study Questions

1. How does believing your times are in God's hand affect response to uncertain circumstances?
2. Why doesn't God's sovereignty eliminate need for prayer? How does prayer function within providence?
3. What is difference between fatalism (passive resignation) and trusting God's providence (active confidence)?
4. How does recognizing God's control over timing help when deliverance seems delayed?
5. In what practical ways can you live out conviction that your times are in God's hand?
