

Psalms 31:4

Authorized King James Version (KJV)

Pull me out of the net that they have laid privily for me: for thou art my strength.

Analysis

The prayer 'Pull me out of the net that they have laid privily for me: for thou art my strength' asks for deliverance from hidden traps. Enemies set nets secretly; only God can rescue from unseen dangers. The basis: 'thou art my strength.' Reformed theology emphasizes that believers lack strength to escape spiritual dangers—Satan, world, flesh lay nets that human wisdom cannot detect or strength escape. Only divine power delivers from hidden snares.

Historical Context

Hunters used hidden nets and traps to catch prey. David's enemies similarly plotted secretly against him. Spiritual warfare includes unseen snares requiring divine revelation and power to escape.
